MICHIGAN LOSES A CHAMPION

The Valhalla beyond the Great Horizon that awaits all good sportsmen won a worthy citizen with the recent arrival of Don McLouth—but Michigan lost a real champion. As a Conservation Commissioner, he drew more commentary from press and public than any of his predecessors in our time. His long-range planning for a better Michigan Outdoors will echo down through the pages of progress for the next 20 years in this State.

Don was a combination of many things—a leading industrialist, a benefactor, a crusader for latent manpower, a builder who could turn a dream into a reality almost overnight, and a man with just enough hindsight to put plenty of foresight on a good, solid basis.

We have shared the friendship of Don McLouth with a thousand kindred souls for nearly two decades. His love of the outdoors was an unusual kind of devotion obvious to us all. Fishing and hunting to him were almost sacred forms of relaxation for man—and to perpetuate their inestimable value he appraised them on a business basis.

Just as a business needs research before production and sales begin, so does the management of wildlife resources need the competent biologist-scientist to keep supply and demand of fish and game in balance. Don stimulated research in all branches of Michigan Outdoors to bring about this balance.

The Conservation Department itself is an enterprise requiring good, efficient business management in every division. When Don McLouth was first appointed to the Commission the first steps in reorganization of the Department were instigated. In late June of this year he was moulding a plan for better coordination within the Department—long needed to bolster general morale.

Don watched the growing pressure of fishermen in our trout waters, and asked that a mere 40 miles out of some 18,000 miles of trout streams in the state be set aside exclusively for fly fishing. No action has been taken—but we predict that these waters and much, much more will be so regulated in the years ahead—a symbol of Don's long-range thinking for better fishing in Michigan.

Don's strategy on the Commission ignored "academic" thinking. He was a realist at every turn, with an amazingly accurate "built-in" crystal ball! Maybe he was too far ahead of his time—but in the days and years to come the fine hand of Don McLouth will leave its mark on the chronicles of better things ahead for us all in the Michigan Outdoors he loved so well.

The sands of time ran out far, far too soon.

Michigan has lost a champion.

Spraying For Game Production

About 1,000 acres in five north-east Michigan areas are being sprayed with herbicides to encourage game production, the conservation department reports.

The extended aerial "field tests" of the plant-killing chemicals were started last week and will be completed this week, weather permitting, game men say.

The chemicals have given satisfactory results in a number of tests made during the last several years. These tests have ranged from small acre-sized spraying experiments to a full 640-acre section test carried out near Grayling a few years ago.

All the experiments have in some way helped game men develop the procedure now being used in the broader field tests.

First sprayed last week was a portion of the Molasses River area in the Gladwin Refuge; the chemicals are expected to kill certain types of brush and shrubs and allow other growths—more suitable to deer and grouse—to develop.

The workers later shifted to three areas near Grayling. One of the sites is being developed primarily for sharp-tailed grouse and the other two for deer and ruffed grouse.

The final spraying chore is being done on Drummond Island, where a sharp-tail opening is being developed.

Accurate assessment of the actual acreage sprayed and effects of the work will have to await later on-the-ground checks. A commercial firm is doing the work under department contract.

Jimmy, The Otter

Many are the tales told of earlier days in Grayling and surrounding communities. Among the most interesting is the story of Jimmy the Otter. We thank T. W. Hanson, 5855 Mission Blvd., Riverside Calif., for sending it to us. Natives of this vicinity will no doubt remember Jimmy. We print this interesting anecdote for the benefit of the more recent residents.

Jimmy the Otter was found shortly after birth and near death in the woods near Lewistown, by Wash Alger, famous hunter and trapper, who brought him to his home in Grayling, and nursed him back to health.

When full grown Wash released him so that he might resume his life in the wilds. Much to his surprise Jimmy elected to remain in Grayling and soon became the town pet and at times somewhat of a nuisance for the housewives were concerned.

One lady had returned from the market, where she purchased some steak for dinner. She put the steak on the kitchen table, then went out for an over-the-fence chat with a neighbor. The kitchen door was left open and when she returned she found the steak missing, and—found—Jimmy—sound asleep on the living room couch.

Jimmy and the dogs in town did not get along very well and so when the dogs took after him, he ducked under the wooden sidewalks, and when the dogs looked down to locate him, he bit them on the nose.

However he formed an everlasting palship, with Rover, a large Newfoundland dog whose owner operated a hotel and saloon opposite the railroad depot and near the Main Stream of the AuSable River.

During the hot summer days Jimmy and Rover would enjoy swimming in the river together and following their river frolic, they would stretch out on the sidewalk and enjoy a nap.

The afternoon train from Detroit usually arrived about the time that Jimmy and Rover were enjoying their swim so the passengers on the train would alight

Crawford County Avalanche
Thursday, August 12, 1954

and enjoy their antics.

During the winter months Jimmy enjoyed sliding in the snow. He usually started at the M. E. Church and slid down hill all the way to the depot, a distance of several blocks.

Jimmy loved crowds and whenever there was a crowd assembled Jimmy would be there. Whenever a fisherman shoved off in his boat for a fishing trip, Jimmy would follow him for miles and it was on one occasion that he met his death which was mourned by the entire village.

This trout fisherman admitted that he shot Jimmy as he interfered with his fishing. However this chap happened to be a native and notorious game violator.

181 In County Draw Social Security

Monthly social security payments amounting to $7,450 were paid to 181 persons in Crawford County at the end of last year, William LaRock, manager of the Traverse City social security office reported today. This is an increase of 11 per cent in a period of a year. For the entire country, the number of persons receiving benefits increased 10 per cent in the same period.

Retired workers continued to be the largest group of beneficiaries, Mr. LaRock said. Last December 97 persons in this group received $4,817.

These local figures for old-age insurance payments also reflect a national trend, Mr. LaRock pointed out. In the country as a whole, more than six million persons were receiving benefit payments at the end of 1953, almost a million more than in December, 1952.

"The payment each month of more than $7,450 to 181 persons in this county is of real significance to the economic well-being of the community at large," Mr. LaRock said, "and in many cases represents the greatest or only source of income to the individual concerned."

The figures given include only actual payments made in December, 1953, Mr. LaRock indicated. Other persons in the county are eligible for benefits but were not paid in December because their earnings exceeded the permitted $75 and resulted in the temporary suspension of payments.

HOW HE LOST HIS PARDON

Arthur T. Pierson

Sam Holmes was in jail in Frankford, Kentucky, under a charge of murder. He was visited one day by an old school fellow, Lucien Young.

Some years before this visit, Lucien Young had been cited by the Kentucky legislature for bravery in the rescue of several persons from a wrecked ship. So it was not strange that Governor Blackburn consented to review Sam Holmes' case when Lucien Young asked him to do so. The governor granted and signed a pardon.

The pardon papers safely in his pocket, Lucien Young returned to the prison to give Sam the good news. Before disclosing the presence of so important a document, Young began conversation on several topics, with this final question:

"Sam, if you were turned loose and fully pardoned, what would be the first thing you would do?"

The convict very quickly responded.

"I would go to Lancaster, and kill Judge Owsley and a man who was a witness against me."

Young turned mournfully away, went outside the prison wall, took the pardon from his pocket, and tore it into bits.

The governor did not grant a pardon because of a change of Sam Holmes' character. It was issued solely for the sake of this heroic friend. Though Lucien Young carried an unconditional forgiveness to the cell of the prisoner, Sam remained unforgiven and under condemnation, in spite of the governor's pardon, because he would not forgive. He had no penitence or sorrow with which to meet pardon and accept mercy.

God has granted a pardon to all mankind, not upon our merits or character, but solely for Christ's sake. God has offered you pardon from sin through the death of His Son, Jesus Christ. But mankind remains unforgiven and condemned as long as it refuses to repent and accept God's offer of forgiveness.

Friend, remember that if you die in your sins it is because you would not. Live—Christ offers you redemption. Receive Him now while the grace and mercy of God still extend a pardon to you.

"God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth on him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God. And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil."—John 3:17-19.

"Survival Is The Answer"

A single common word, survival, covers the most awesome problem that this nation has ever faced. It is almost impossible to visualize the destructive power of the weapons that exist today, and the even more terrible ones that will probably come into existence in the relatively near future.

A vast literature has been written on what we must do if we are to continue to exist as a nation. A very distinguished authority, Charles A. Lindbergh, makes an impressive contribution to it in a brief article appearing in the Saturday Evening Post of July 17th, entitled "Our Best Chance to Survive."

General Lindbergh begins by pointing out that, in atomic war, an initial attack made without warning could kill millions and destroy all the great cities. Thus, unless the nation possessed military forces which were both extensively decentralized as well as extraordinarily powerful, its ability to retaliate in kind might be destroyed too. He writes, "The hydrogen bomb and the supersonic missile have eliminated defensive security on the surface of the earth. The most elaborate defensive network we can devise would intercept only a fraction of modern enemy aircraft launched in a determined attack on this country. Atomic bombs can also be delivered by submarines, ships or saboteurs, and one bomb will erase one city."

Here General Lindbergh observes that to strike without warning is against our traditions. So, of course, is capitulation. The one alternative is vast military strength: "We must maintain an inexpugnable means of retaliation—a method of delivering our bombs in the event a surprise attack is made upon this country, and after we have absorbed the first terrific blow."

This means, he goes on, that we must have great numbers of air bases, so many that our retaliatory power could not be paralyzed in that initial enemy attack, no matter how great its scale. It further means research, development and industrial decentralization programs that will improve the effectiveness of our future weapons and reduce our vulnerability." So far as possible, he believes, important war establishments of all kinds should be located outside the major target areas.

General Lindbergh also emphasizes the human element in the military forces. In this element, he writes, "lies an extraordinary opportunity to increase our power and reduce our costs . . . Our ingenuity in the use of man has not kept pace with our ingenuity in the use of the machines man manufactures. Economy itself demands that . . . long years of expensive training should be followed by opportunities, pay and conditions which encourage people to remain in the careers they were trained for."

Finally, General Lindbergh advocates "a prodigious Air Force, a strong Army, a strong Navy and strong allies." The task is a formidable one, but he is convinced that it is within our capabilities, and that it is absolutely essential to survival. To quote him once again, "As long as a dangerous enemy exists, our security will lie in the indestructible power to destroy."

1. More new car for your money

Buick prices start close to the lowest—just a few dollars above those of the traditional "low-price three." But those few more dollars for a Buick get you a lot more automobile—more room, more comfort, more V8 power, more ride steadiness, more solid durability—plus the advanced "tomorrow" styling that has taken the country by storm.

2. More money for your present car

With our great and growing sales volume, we can offer you a bigger trade-in allowance on your present car when you buy a new Buick. After all, the more new cars we sell, the better deal we can make with you. So you get the benefit of our great success in the form of a higher trade-in allowance.

3. More dollars when you trade

Because Buick's broad panoramic windshield has started a whole new styling trend, you can be sure that today's Buick will keep its modern look for years to come. So you are assured of a higher resale figure when you trade it in later on.

From where I sit...by Joe Marsh

"Nothing to Sneeze At"

This year our town decided to do something about its hay-fever sufferers. Hay Thomas is our health officer, so he was made rag-wed "Inspector."

"Can't see why anybody should be bothered by a few weeds," he snorted. "I say it's all in their minds." But Hay went on out to do his job.

Then, yesterday, I met Hay-looking kind of sheepish. His eyes were red and as he took out a big handkerchief, he sneezed. "Know somebody who isn't allergic, who'd like a job?" asks Hay.

From where I sit, I can sympathize with Hay. It's no joke. But as Hay admitted later, he was dead wrong in scoffing at the idea of hay fever. Making light of other people's ideas and opinions is a familiar trouble with a lot of folks. Whether it's hay fever, football or a choice of say, buttermilk or beer as a thirst-quencher, I'm just naturally "allergic" to anybody who "knows it all!"

"SMALL BUSINESS"
B. C. WILSON HARDER

While securing data on which Federal Trade Commission is making investigation of couponing practices, the National Federation of Independent Business found even a guess cannot be made on yearly cost of coupons to nations independent grocers.

Independent grocers lose on coupons two ways.

Usually, the huge couponing corporation agrees to pay the grocer a service charge on each coupon received.

Thus, the grocer takes the item out of stock, and gives it to the customer for a coupon and cut price, often less than grocers cost. Theoretically, he receives from the corporation the amount of the discount, plus the handling fee. But even at best, part of the grocers working capital is tied up weeks, or months, in coupons. Thus big corporation schemes to wreck independent manufacturing competition in an area is partly based on working on independent grocer's money.

But processing coupons is expensive. A big national chain operation now demands the usual 1c handling fee be raised to 2 1/2c on the basis their figures show it actually costs them 2 1/2c to handle every coupon they receive.

However, independent grocers take an even greater loss than chains. Corporations, because of the club wielded by chains, will pay off coupons held by chains, with a question asked but a number of subterfuges are used to delay or avoid payment altogether to independent grocers.

For example, there is the dating procedure, some grocers use National Federation of Independent Business

There is also the "not stocked" basis for refusal to pay. Sometimes an item is couponed a grocer does not usually stock, but to accommodate customers presenting coupons, he will stock for a few weeks to cover coupons. But when he sends the coupons into the corporation to get his money back, payment is refused on grounds grocer does not carry item. Sometimes the corporation will be gracious, however, agreeing to honor the coupons if grocer places an order for several times a normal supply of the item.

Other dodges which prevent independent grocers from collecting on coupons turned into them are being explored by FTC probe. However, a pretty clear picture is emerging which shows toll being taken from independent business and public.

Whenever one of these corporations decides an independent manufacturer is too strong in some area, it moves in with coupons delivered to every home in an area at a loss to the Post Office, thus costing taxpayers. Then grocers, chain and independent alike, are forced to serve as banking centers for this spurious coupon currency at a loss, and independent suffer still further and buyers of item in areas not couponed pay a price which permits corporation to use those tactics to attack independent manufacturers. Thus, ironically, every time a housewife presents a coupon she is unknowingly helping to destroy independent business payrolls, perhaps her own families income.

YOUR MILK...
By Alfred Hammel

Water is a very important part of our lives. Even our bodies, for the most part, are made up of water. If it should stop raining, in a short space of time we would all perish from this earth. The rainfall of Crawford County over a period of years, is thirty inches per year. But the rain does not always come when we need it the most. Therefore we should store away as much of this water as possible for future use. Sandy soil with nothing growing on it holds very little water, the evaporation from wind and sun is great. But where the land has been in heavy timber for many years, the leaf mold and decayed wood is often six inches to one foot thick. We can easily see what a forest fire will do. It will set us back fifty years. Soil experts claim that it takes nature one hundred years to build the top inch of our soil and through our carelessness and poor farm practice we can ruin it in a few years. Somewhere in the United States each year there is a bad drought and many of these places have large bodies of water. Why not dig canals and use some of this water instead of letting it run into the sea? Thus we would have less floods in high water time and even in the normal years most crops would benefit from more water at the right time. Our large cities and their manufacturing plants use a great amount of water. Unless we learn to store away more water, we are apt to find ourselves going short. Our thousands of miles of highways and other hard-surfaced roads hold no water. But the water finds its way into ditches, creeks and rivers and finally is lost in the sea.

Use more milk every day and the day will come when you will be glad you did. It is as simple as this, just call up Hunter's AuSable Dairy in Grayling and tell them to deliver you Crawford County produced milk and they will take care of the rest.

Crawford County Dairymen's Assn.
